BIG RAIN Falls in Victoria

Melbourne, November 14 Heavy rains have fallen through-out almost all parts of the State. The heaviest falls were in southern districts, where 229 points fell at Sale.

Further falls are predicted with floods in places.

Southern Sporting Notes By Poseidon

To every close student of racing, the Melbourne Cup of 1929 must go down as the most unsatisfactory since the inception of the race. A strange combination of hard solid facts makes it impossible for me to accept the result as being a true indication of merit or form.

To one and all of my readers I would say follow Pharlap in every start for the future for I believe him to be the greatest horse we have seen out in Australia. With the experience of the Melbourne Cup to guide his connections I do not think that they will ever be caught nap-ping again, nor do I think that this great horse will ever meet defeat again when in proper racing condi-

To take a genuine stayer to the front after half a mile of the journey had been completed was, in itself, sufficient to beat the horse, but when the field was slowed down to such an extent, as was the case with Pharlap, it simply made the race to order for the more brilliant horses as opposed to the stayers. Pharlap won all his races with brilliant hing efforts. Pharlap after has won all his races with orillant finishing efforts. Pharlap after being taken to the front lead into the straight, immediately followed by Carradale, who then ran right off track and two brilliant horses Nightmarch and Paquito were thus able to beat the certainty to

No one has a greater admiration for Nightmarch than the wrirer but I simply cannot accept this result as being correct. I know that it is not and I feel sure that the future will bear out my contention. The time, on a track that was in excellent order should have been bettered considerably by what might be classed as one of the best fields that has ever started in a Melbourne

I may be wrong in my summing up of the situation but I do not think so. I consider that Pharlap will prove future that prove conclusively in the numbered amongst the winners of numbered amongst the winners of the Melbourne Cup.

Reviewing the past twelve months racing in big handicaps, there appears to be some ground for the appears to be some ground for the complaint that the big handicaps are too easy to pick, as during that period the only outsider to win a handicap of note is Crucis who started at 20's after touching 12's in the last Sydney Cup. In practically all the other big handicaps the winners have been either first, second or third favorrities.

the winners have been either first, second or third favourites.

Southern Turf critics are already looking for the winner of the Derby of 1930 and they appear to have decided on Veilmond, a Limond colt bred in New Zealand. Personally I do not think that the next Derby winner has yet sported silk. Early two year olds as a rule do not represent staying form, and I am inclined to think that the form of the late end of the season is more likely to reveal the winner.

Social Notes By Prudence

Well 'dears, Friday night's fancy dress ball went with a jolly swing, though there were not so many fancy dresses as usual—however, funcy dresses as usual—however, really, their charm and their daring, almost made up for the lack of quantity, so to speak. Jessie Hart was too obviously the belle of the ball, and won the first prize again, actually. Miss McGuire and Mrs. Hardy also deserve honorable mention, surely. But, oh my dears, you should have seen 'The Caddy'-really such a nice 'man', charming! And I specially asked that the prize I offered and was going begging, so to speak, be given as an extra prize to 'The Caddy'. You know, really, isn' it? —its so strange how when it comes to fancy dress how when it comes to fancy dress all the men want to wear skirts and all the ladies like to wear male clothing? However, you know, its all very charming. (With apologies

All of Port, at least all of his wife, turned out to see the "Morinda" off on Monday morning, There were so many residents going away that all their friends represented practically the whole population. Miss Morrison, nicce of Sir Hubert Murray, who has spent a few savels belief the beauty are seen of few months holiday here was one of the passengers to leave, and also the passengers to leave, and also Mrs. Bignold, another of our Crown Law Officer, after a month's holiday spent with her son. Mr. & Mrs. H, A. Ross, and Sandy, were being farewelled again of course, and they were accompanied by Mrs. Ross Senr., Mr. Ross's mother. The town seemed quite dull after the boat went, we shall soon be down to half our usual population.

The Institute's Budminton singles championship tournament was held on Wednesday and lasted all day from 9.30 to 6 p.m. Yet gods, who says the ladies of Port don't work? Singles does not seem as popular as doubles, and I don't wonder, for players on Wednesday. However, play was very keen and the tournament was won by Mrs. Turnbull, with Mrs. Montieth the runner up. Mrs. Armstrong, on behalf of the Institute, presented the winner with a badminton racquet. It is no wonder Mrs. Turnbull won the wonder Mrs. Turnbull won the tournament, for she collected 163 points out of a possible 165, only two points lost in about eleven suppose there will be another Stamble to morrow morning, for I hear Burns Philp are opening up a special range of hats—for the ladies, of course. Almost as good as the Saturday morning specials, so dear to some of our friends in Australia,

Mrs. E. C. Harris and infant travelled to Samarai by the "Laura-bada" which left here last Wednes-day. Mrs. Harris has gone for a month's holiday among her many friends in that end of the Territory.
